

A message of solidarity from Christine Blower, General Secretary of the National Union of Teachers

Better education for a better world, uniting for quality education is the aim of the Unite for Quality Education campaign, which I am pleased to hear, is being echoed at the Gambia Teachers' Union Congress this year.

We, in the NUT, highly value our relationship with the GTU, which we have continued to develop for many years now. I am committed to maintaining and strengthening this relationship.

We welcome and support the GTU's work around 'Qualifying for Quality' and attempting to overcome the shortage of qualified teachers in the Gambia. The right to education will not be achieved unless there is a political will and commitment to ensure sufficient funding and resources. We need qualified teachers for all children in order to achieve quality education for all.

We wish you the very best in your work, a successful Congress and be assured of our continuing solidarity.

Yours sincerely,
